“The Spanish Element in Our Nationality”: Spain and America at the World’s Fairs and Centennial Celebrations, 1876–1915. University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2020 (R, 256 pages). Translated and republished as España y América: Construcción de la identidad en las exposiciones internacionales (1876–1915). Madrid: Centro de Estudios Europa Hispánica, 2022. This book uses Spanish participation at a series of world’s fairs and centennial exhibitions—in the United States (1876, 1893 and 1915), in Barcelona and Paris (1888 and 1889), and in Latin America (Argentina, Mexico, and Chile, 1910)—in order to examine the erasure of Spanishness in U.S. history, the complexity of Spanish identity within the Iberian Peninsula, and the use of Spain in the development of national identity in the Americas. Fine art, visual culture, and the architectural spaces mounted at the fairs provide the focus for this study. Vistas de España: American Views of Art and Life in Spain, 1860–1914. New Haven: Yale University Press, 2007 (R, 270 pages). Considers paintings of Spain created by artists from the United States during the years 1860–1914, a period that marked a definitive shift in power between the United States and Spain, was punctuated by the War of 1898, and witnessed the emergence of difficult questions and contradictory models for the nature of U.S. national identity. The ways in which painters from the United States employed Spanish art and life in their work—fusing Spain’s past with its present and foretelling a glorious future for their own nation—suggest provocative implications for both nineteenth-century history as well as for U.S. relations with the Spanish-speaking world today. Edited Books and Journal Issues

Co-edited with Lianne McTavish, Exhibiting Animals in Europe and America. New York: Routledge, forthcoming in 2024. Anthology of essays written by historians of art and visual culture working to understand how our ways of positioning (and ex-positioning) animals have separated us from the other-than-human animals that are an integral part of our interconnected world. The authors cover topics that span the sixteenth through the early twentieth centuries and focus geographically on Europe and America, with significant content related to Canada, Indigenous America, and Latin America.

Co-edited with Joan E. Greer, “Centering the Margins of Nineteenth-Century Art,” Forum (special section) in Nineteenth Century Studies 25 (2011): 141–237 (R). Special section for the periodical Nineteenth Century Studies, with a series of articles that explore art, design, and visual culture emanating from positions of marginality, with particular emphasis on Europe and the Americas. The forum consists of a co-authored “Introduction” in addition to the essays, examining canon formation and historiography; the reception of earlier art and art theory; religion, politics and gender; diaspora, exile and expatriation; nationhood and internationalization.
