From 2005 to 2008, I have hired and supervised 7 students (2 undergraduates and 5 graduate students) to complete research on Ile à la Crosse, Father Lacombe and Saint-Paul-des Métis. These students engaged in archival research and data entry through spreadsheets. From 2006 to 2008, 13 students in Law, Native Studies and History (graduate and undergraduate) have been hired to work on the Historical and Legal Foundations of Métis Aboriginal Rights in Alberta project. From 2008 to 2018, I have hired and supervised 25 students for different projects (8 of these students were graduate students: MA and Ph.D). Most of them have been engaged in historical research as well as interviewing Métis elders or helping organize focus groups with Aboriginal students and francophone immigrants.
